School District 19
(Revelstoke)

Dear Parents/Guardians:

Please see the attached press release from the Ministry of Education describing next steps and the provincial, phased approach that will guide our decision making. The Ministry of Education is requesting that school districts begin to plan for a future move to Stage 3. That change would provide parents of K-5 students with the choice to send their children to school part-time and allow for students in grades 6-12, who require in-class support, to attend part-time as well. Home and online learning opportunities would continue where appropriate.

Provincial Health Officer, Dr. Henry has stated all along that “this is not forever; it is just for now”. We are cautiously optimistic and looking forward to having staff and students working together as soon as we are able. As with every step to date, health and safety remains a top priority, so we will continue to follow clear guidelines from the Provincial Health Office as our “in person” contact increases.

I will continue to update our website at www.sd19.bc.ca with resource links and information items.

Thank you very much for your support and patience during this time. As always, please provide feedback to your child’s teachers, principal, or directly to me (mhooker@sd19.bc.ca) to help us make the very best of this situation.

Sincerely,

Measured approach to phasing in a return to learning in classrooms

The Ministry of Education is working with all 60 school districts, independent school authorities, First Nations schools, teachers, school leaders, support staff, public health officials and all its education partners to begin a co-ordinated and measured phased-in approach to resuming in-class learning, guided by strict health and safety guidelines.

This measured approach will involve five stages leading to an eventual safe and full return of students learning in classrooms and provides flexibility to continue home learning even while in-class instruction is available.

While face-to-face instruction is suspended for the majority of students, schools in the province remain open for some, including children of essential service workers and those who are vulnerable and need more supports.

All 60 school districts and independent schools are currently in Stage 4 (chart below), where children of essential service workers and vulnerable students are currently being supported in the classroom, while online and remote learning opportunities are being delivered to most students at home.

There are currently 4,700 children of essential service workers and about 300 vulnerable students and students with disabilities/diverse abilities being supported in public and independent school classrooms throughout B.C.

Districts are making sure families learning remotely who do not have access to technology are getting the help they need by loaning out equipment – to date, more than 27,000 computers and devices are being loaned. School communities throughout the province also worked quickly to provide almost 75,000 meals and food supports on a weekly basis to over 16,000 families.

Schools are operating under the guidelines established by the provincial health officer and BC Centre for Disease Control to ensure the safety of students and education professionals. These guidelines include controlling access to buildings, maintaining physical distancing amongst staff and implementing distancing strategies for students who are in schools, and maintaining good hygiene practices.

The ministry will continue to work closely with all education partners. More information on the phased-in approach to resuming in-class instruction will be available in the weeks to come.
